

CATHEDRAL CHURCH, ST. AUGUSTINE, FLORIDA—6K

14914N

The Cathedral Church, commenced in 1793, was without tower or steeple. The disastrous fire of 1887 left little of this old building besides the walls. The work of restoration was carried out in 1888, at which time large additions were made. The clock was a gift from Mr. J. Y. Wilson, a public-spirited citizen. In the Old Moorish facade hang four bells no longer used, the smallest of which bears the inscription:

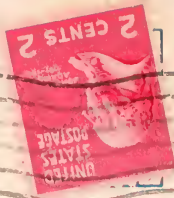

"St. Joseph Ora Pro Nobis A. D. 1682."

This is probably the oldest bell in this country.
